You can have it all: retain the clean, elegant lines of cement plaster and the ability to choose from an extensive palette of unique colours, all at a price you can afford.

Each carefully selected Imasco hue is bound in pigmented cement, which means no matter how saturated the shade, it colours right through, and will not require painting. The colour lasts and lasts, just clean it with water.

Unlike painted siding, Imasco's colour-through cement plaster also breathes, dampens noise and is fire resistant. No wonder cement plaster has been in demand for thousands of years: its appeal is timeless.

TEXTURES

Texture Portfolio

Once you choose a colour, it's then time to choose a texture to complement the design of your building. Below is a sampling of the distinctive textures that may be achieved with Imasco cement stucco.

Your chosen texture should be applied following standard building codes, on a basecoat that has cured for the appropriate time and is clean. Please note that Artisan hues require a heavy texture finish to fully capture its deep, rich, colour palette and old-world, hand-crafted charm.

COLOUR STRENGTH

Shades within shades

Imasco offers a broad palette of 87 cement stucco colours. Each one of our regular Premix Colours (colours noted in a green box or with the letter P in the colour code) can be mixed at different strengths to provide a range of shades, from light to dark. Our Artisan Premix Colours (colours in an orange box with an A in the colour code) however must always be mixed at full strength.

THINGS TO KNOW

Colour variations are more noticeable on cement-based Premix stuccos in darker colours. Stucco finish must be protected from rain for 48 hours after application. Intense direct sunlight on the wall just before or after application will result in a lighter final colour. The addition of excessive water will result in a lighter colour than expected. All stucco components must be properly installed by trained applicators. We highly recommend that the contractor prepare an on site sample for the owner's approval prior to commencing the project.
